

“You Have A Short Window!”

Those who know me are aware of how God occasionally tells me,

“You Have a Short Window!”

I can count the times He’s done that on one hand. To date, it’s always been regarding personal things, such as the death of a loved one, the selling of a house, etc.; always to advise me of the need to move quickly to carry out His instructions before particular events take place.

Saints, He’s telling me this again! I’ve been hearing this since the first week in May when the lock down began easing up here in Oklahoma. Because of the intimate and personal way God’s always spoken this to me – to spur me into action, I hadn’t thought of releasing it to the Body of Christ until last night, when God used a sister in the Lord to suggest this be shared with you. Let me first give the exact wording He’s been speaking, which varies slightly from previous times:

“You Have A Very Short Window!”

I’m being told the Saints have a very short window to prepare for what’s coming.

Listening to the news out there, one would think it to be a second wave of the virus; this time a deadly strain... and it very well may be. But God has a surprise for the “elite.” Things will go awry for them and turn upon their own heads. Not sure exactly how it pans out in the immediate future, but when the judgments of God begin, the wicked will be greatly affected and caught in their own net.

GOD’s totally in charge of His judgments. His judgments are true and righteous. They’ll begin and be carried out according to His plan! And when they do begin, there’ll be no question they are from God.

The Lord’s plan is always to save as many as will turn to Him. He’s preparing an army to be used for the greatest rescue mission of all time. This army is being called together, the purification and selection process going on even now. God reminded me of Gideon’s army, which started out with thirty-two thousand men, before the Lord whittled it down to three hundred.

This army will be very small in comparison to the millions of Christians walking the earth.

I’d like to share an open vision given to me in 2017:

The vision began with me walking down a city street with a man at my right side. I never looked directly at the man, so his identity wasn’t revealed. But we knew each other and were going from place to place as directed by the Spirit. The power of God was strong within us and flowing out touching others. Wherever we went, one of two reactions occurred.

As we walked down the street, or into buildings, the people on our right side would begin falling to their knees in repentance and praising God. But the people on our left would begin screaming out in fear, pain, and agony.

(end of vision)

A time is coming when the anointing of God will be so strong upon His people that the very atmosphere around them will be affected. During this brief period, where ever they go, conviction will fall upon the masses. There will be those who fall to their knees in repentance unto salvation – and those who scream out in agony when judgment falls as they reject Jesus.

Saints, the army of God is being called, chosen, and purified; and from glory to glory transformed into His likeness. At the appointed time, the transformation will be complete, and the very Bride of Christ will go forth in His Fullness. In the power and authority given her by the Bridegroom, she'll enter into the enemy's camps and territories, bind the strongman, and set captives free.

Right now, the Saints of God have been given a very short window to prepare for what's coming. The coming event(s) will be part of the final training, purification, and selection process. Suffice it to say, it will not be easy, but God's faithful to provide all our needs. As we keep our eyes fastened solely upon the Lord, He'll make sure we're prepared for whatever comes!

It's critical we use this short window of time in getting our physical and spiritual houses in order – as led by the Holy Spirit. I highly recommend reading (or rereading) the two related posts below for instructions on how to prepare, as well as be encouraged by a glimpse of what's to come.

Please pray over what's been presented here for further revelation in how this may apply to you.

May God bless each and every one of you.
